NEW SW PARK IS OFFICIALLY NAMED

A new park under construction in Southwest Las Vegas (Buffalo and Russell) now has a name. Clark County Commissioner Michael Naft recognized Durango High School Senior Hailey Anderson for coming up with "Echo Trail Park." She said the name was her idea "because similar to an echo, we bounce back." Hailey's "Echo Trail Park" was chosen from a naming contest involving Durango High School and Grant Sawyer Middle School.

Commissioner Naft and Clark County Parks and Recreation broke ground on the park in October. The initial 6 acres of the eventual 36 acre nature-themed park opens in the fall and will feature a splash pad, two playgrounds, shaded tennis court, picnic shelters, open turf area and trails.

Those wanting more information about the new park may call the Clark County Parks and Recreation Department at 702-455-8200.

Commissioner Michael Naft joined Silverado Ranch Residents for the opening of the valleys second UFC Fit, located at 9875 S Maryland Pkwy, Las Vegas, NV 89183.

Grant a Gift Autism Foundation turned the Welcome to Las Vegas sign blue in support of World Autism Day and Autism Awareness Month. Commissioner Naft joined representatives from the organization as well as Commissioners Kirkpatrick and McCurdy to raise awareness of the importance of education and recognizing the signs of autism.

Commissioner Naft participated in many events in April intended to encourage our community to #GetVaxxed and get tested if you're experiencing any symptoms of COVID-19. Events included an event offering Drive-Thru COVID-19 Testing at Allegiant Stadium and a tour of the Sun City Anthem Vaccination Site.

The Crossings Church near Nevada Trails hosted their Eggstravaganza event which served as both a food distribution and food collection site. The event was a collaboration between the church, LVMPD, and Three Square.

CLARK COUNTY SENIOR CENTERS REOPEN TO EAGER RESIDENTS LOOKING TO VISIT WITH FRIENDS

“Seniors have been getting vaccinated and more are doing so every day. Opening the senior centers is a wonderful milestone as we safely return to normal,” said Clark County Commissioner Michael Naft.

Clark County’s senior centers are the first in the Las Vegas Valley to reopen to the public. Commissioner Michael Naft was on-hand to welcome the community back to the West Flamingo Senior Center at 6255 W Flamingo Road.

The County provides senior-focused programming and space at other community centers, as well, including Bob Price, Cambridge, Parkdale, Walnut, Whitney, Winchester Dondero, Moapa Valley and Sandy Valley. More than 80% of seniors at least 70 years old have been vaccinated across Clark County.

“It is important to provide a safe space for our seniors to socialize and recreate,” said Commissioner Naft, whose district includes the West Flamingo Senior Center. “Seniors have been getting vaccinated and more are doing so every day. Opening the senior centers is a wonderful milestone as we safely return to normal.” Commission Chairman Marilyn Kirkpatrick, whose district includes the Cora Coleman Senior Center, agreed. “It was heartbreaking to have to close our senior centers last year since they are central to so many seniors’ lives,” she said. “It is gratifying that we can reopen them now, even if we are limited to 50 percent capacity.”

The West Flamingo Senior Center is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. It features a multipurpose room for pickleball and other activities, dance room, game room with ping pong and pool tables, craft room, lending library, card room, meeting room, exercise room and horseshow pits.

COMMISSIONERS NAFT AND MCCURDY HOST #GETVAXXEDNV EVENT WITH FREE COVID VACCINATIONS

Clark County Commissioners William McCurdy II and Michael Naft will host a #GetVaxxedNV Back to Life Road to Reopening festival featuring music, food trucks, games, giveaways and walk-up COVID-19 vaccinations on Friday, May 14, 3 to 7 p.m. in Clark County's outdoor amphitheater at 500 S. Grand Central Parkway in downtown Las Vegas.

Free COVID-19 vaccinations will be offered while supplies last during the event with no appointments necessary. The festival, featuring live radio broadcasts, food trucks, and a variety of games and giveaways, is being hosted in partnership with local radio stations, businesses, and government agencies. Residents who want to get vaccinated at this event and need help getting there may call (702) 649-2000 for transportation help.

"We continue to work hard to provide unique vaccination experiences that make taking your shot as easy as it is rewarding," said Commissioner Naft. "Events like this will help us achieve our goal of being one of the safest communities in the United States and providing a significant level of confidence in those who desire to travel to Las Vegas for leisure and business and for those who call Clark County home."
