1 October Memorial Committee to Meet May 25 Public Invited to Join Email List to Get Updates, Offer Feedback

Clark County's 1 October Memorial Committee will meet at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, May 25, in the Clark County Commission Chambers at the Clark County Government Center located at 500 S. Grand Central Parkway in downtown Las Vegas.

The Committee is working to fine-tune a three-phase process for creating a permanent memorial that remembers those who perished in the event of 1 October 2017, honors the survivors, first responders and everyday heroes who inspired the nation with their bravery, and celebrates the resiliency and compassion of our community. At Wednesday's meeting committee members will continue to work on the process of accepting memorial ideas from the public and professionals, the timelines involved, and receive a presentation about website technology to be used to accept submissions.

"We are designing our process to allow professionals and the public to participate in developing a memorial that our community can be proud of," said Committee Chairman Tennille Pereira, who also serves as director of the County's Vegas Strong Resiliency Center. "We look forward to launching our three pathways for participation this summer." The memorial development process will unfold over the course of several months and result in an eventual recommendation for a project to be submitted to the Clark County Commission in 2023. The first phase will launch calls for three pathways for participation in which the public and professionals can get involved.

1. A Call for RFQ Evaluators: to serve on a jury to evaluate formal Request for Qualifications (RFQs) from professional design teams interested in participating in the process. Seven evaluators will be selected, along with seven alternates. The makeup of the panel would consist of a family member of a victim, a survivor of the shooting, a first responder, a representative from Clark County's Real Property Management Department, and experts in architecture, engineering, art history or similar disciplines. Applicants not selected to serve as evaluators may later be invited to participate in stakeholder focus groups with up to five RFQ finalists selected to design a memorial concept and model in the second phase of the process.
2. A Call for Creative Expression: which will allow members of the public and artists and designers not part of a professional design team to submit ideas for a memorial project or express interest in participating on a selected RFQ design team. Clark County is developing an online gallery for public viewing of submissions we receive permission to display. RFQ finalists will be encouraged to review and include ideas and artists presented through Creative Expressions pathway as they develop their proposals to be unveiled to the public in the third phase of the process.

3. A Request for Qualifications (RFQ): from professional artists and design teams, including a licensed architect, interested in submitting a proposed concept for a memorial. Up to five RFQ teams will be selected to participate in the second phase of the memorial development process, which will include meetings with stakeholder focus groups, review of Creative Expression submissions, and the creation of models to showcase their design concepts.

The public may watch Wednesday's 1 October Memorial Committee meeting live on Clark County Television (CCTV) and online at www.youtube.com/user/ClarkCountyNV/live or the committee's Facebook page @1OctoberMemorial. The meeting agenda is posted on the 1 October Memorial pages of the County's website at www.ClarkCountyNV.gov/1OctoberMemorial. Committee members and County staff will host the meeting on WebEx, which is accessible by computer and telephone via information provided in the online agenda.

In addition to Pereira, members of the 1 October Memorial Committee include Karessa Royce, a 1 October survivor, serving as Vice Chairman; Mynda Smith, the sister of 1 October Victim Neysa Tonks; Kelly McMahill, a deputy chief for the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department; architect Dr. Robert Fielden, who established the UNLV School of Architecture; Rebecca Holden, public art project manager for the city of Las Vegas Office of Cultural Affairs; and Harold Bradford, a local artist. Consultant Punam Mathur facilitates committee meetings, while staff from Clark County's Parks and Recreation Department and other departments will support the group's activities.
