

Lauren Rosenblatt is a lay member of the Air Pollution Control Hearing Board, appointed by the Clark County Commissioners in October 2017. Ms. Rosenblatt has committed professionally to Nevada, both as a member of the executive team of Nevada-based business Terbine, and as a partner in e-centricity, LLP, a Nevada partnership that offers thought leadership to businesses and government entities in the electricity and advanced transportation sectors. Her legal career includes oversight of the nation's energy markets as an enforcement attorney at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, and several years as a business and securities litigator defending clients in both private and government lawsuits and government investigations. Prior to practicing law, she worked as an engineer with the Environmental and Water Resources Division of Brown and Root, Inc. in Houston, Texas (now KBR Engineering). Ms. Rosenblatt has a law degree from the University of Texas School of Law, and a bachelor's of science in civil engineering, with a focus on environmental issues, from Rice University. Ms. Rosenblatt moved to Nevada from Washington, D.C. in 2014. She is committed to serving southern Nevada in various ways that will contribute to the quality of life for local residents and business. She also serves on the board of the Cockroach Theatre Company. Her term expires November 2, 2023.